Federal Hazardous Materials Regulations requires emergency response information be in every truck that transports hazardous materials. The Emergency Response Guidebook with hazmat shipping papers is how many fuel marketers comply with the emergency response information requirements.

The Vermont Fire Code requires all through the wall vents for fuel fired heating appliances to have signage. This requirement for signage applies to new and existing side wall vent installations in all public buildings. VFDA has weatherproof heating vent signs available that meets the fire code requirement.

The Vermont Fire Code requires all fuel fired heating appliances in public buildings to be inspected at least every 2 years by a certified heating fuel technician. According to the code, the appliance must be marked with the date of the inspection and the name and certificate number of the technician who performed the inspection. VFDA has generic inspection tags that meets code.

Vermont's Above Ground Storage Tank rules provide spill prevention and inspection requirements for tank owners and fuel suppliers. The rules allow fuel dealers to "red tag" a non-compliant tank and put it out of service in order to prevent a spill.

VFDA's "It's a Promise" brochures helps explain Vermont's fixed price fuel contract law to consumers.

VFDA's "Flood Safety" brochure gives propane and oilheat consumers guidance on tank safety.
